Last transnational meeting in Paris

Partners are working on final Guidelines and CLASS E-Book

Final Meeting & Event in Guimaraes - Portugal

PRESENTATION

The aim of the CLASS project is to provide teachers with new pedagogical tools and approaches adapted to new needs in order to involve organizations and companies with different horizons, not only in education, in a broader vision of education that focuses not only on knowledge and skills but also on common universal needs and values.

In the CLASS project, scientific cooperation between four European partner countries (Italy, leader, France, Germany and Portugal) is developing tools to combat early school leaving and to promote the 8 key competences agreed in the European framework (EC, 2006 & 2018).

After a year without face-to-face collaboration meetings, due to COVID restrictions, the Class Team has finally gotten together for a transnational meeting. When French, German, Portuguese and Italian teachers get involved to test and evaluate good practices in voluntary work as part of the PCTO, Erasmus C.L.A.S.S., among the top European Key Actions, is born. Guests of the Cité des Métiers, at La Villette (Science Museum) among the wonderful Ateliers of Fab Lab, teachers met with the representatives of the Third Sector.

The meeting opened with a managerial briefing by the project Coordinator in order to check the on-going progress of the project, followed by an evaluation of the work in progress to which all the partners contributed. The meeting continued with a discussion regarding the Intellectual Outputs of the project, through a presentation of the Guidelines & National reports, followed by the partners' feedback and final agreements. Another topic of discussion was the finalization of the project's E-book focusing on summary and contents.

During the first day of the meeting, the partners also focused on the work done by the schools involved in the project in each country.

The second day was focused on the preparation of the final conference in Portugal, focusing on the content of the conference, each partner's contribution and the setting a timeframe for the implementation of each presentation, to which all partners gave their contribution. At the end of the discussion, the Coordinator proceeded to sum up and close the meeting.
